Are you up to date on Infection Prevention?

Over the last two decades there has been an increased awareness over the importance of improving the quality of instrument decontamination to reduce the risks of transmission of infectious diseases and improve the quality of surgical instruments. A major driver for these changes for all surgical instruments including dental surgery has been the appearance of vCJD in the UK and many other countries throughout the world. It is also timely to remember the potential for transmission of other infectious agents such as hepatitis B and MRSA in the dental setting.

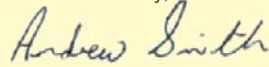

The conference aims to provide you with a theoretical background to infectious diseases as applied to the dental setting by a cohort of international experts in the field. Perhaps more importantly we have an experienced cadre of dental practitioners and technical experts to provide feedback from their extensive activities working with and in general dental practice.

With the limited number of real experts in this field the 4th National Conference in this series provides a truly unique experience to inform the current national debates over the decontamination of dental instruments. This together with a truly unique venue with its easy access and facilities promises to be a rewarding day.

We look forward to meeting you in Leeds on the 19th of November 2010.

Yours sincerely,

Dr AJ Smith

Chair, Conference Organising Committee

Who should attend?

The conference should be of interest to the whole dental team including –

Dentists, dental nurses, hygienists, dental technicians as well as infection control specialists, companies involved in the design of dental surgeries, the dental trade, media and anyone else with an interest in this area.
